Office Action Summary

Art Unit: 1761

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by The Good Cook literature article (pages 96, 108,110)

The literature article discloses marinating, in a liquid marinade, chilled or cooled chicken pieces, e.g. slices, and then cooking.

4. Claim 1 is also rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Strong (4,012,808,cols. 5 and 6). Strong discloses cutting a chilled chicken into pieces, marinating in a liquid marinade, battering and breading if desired, and then cooking by frying. It would have been obvious to eliminate the battering and breading steps with their function if it is desired to prepare cooked chicken for individuals on low carbohydrate diets or for individuals who simply do not desire breading.

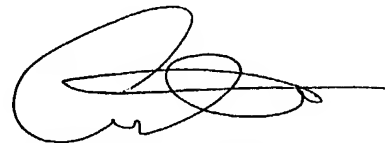

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Buckholz et al, Babka et al and Mason et al show various chicken marinating procedures followed by cooking.
